IT'S BACK: Market Hill, in Clare which is welcoming back its historic market Picture: Google maps

Historic market set to return

RACHAEL
MC MENEMY
@rach_mc9CN

AN HISTORIC market is returning to the town of Clare after overwhelming support from people and businesses who pushed for a comeback for 18 years.

Following the long-fought campaign, the market will be back on August 19 in Market Hill and will be a monthly event.

Auctioneer and antique dealer Robin Stone put together a plan with other business owners about options for reopening the market prompting a public consultation by St Edmundsbury Borough Council in March.

Cllr Alaric Pugh, who represents Clare on the borough council and who is also cabinet member for planning and growth, said: "There has been lots of enthusiasm from residents and businesses to re-establish a market in Clare, and so I am thrilled that together with Clare Town Council, we are supporting the community in bringing about its return."

"Clare has a brilliant character and charm, and I know that a strong market with an array of stalls can only complement the businesses that we have here in Clare, attracting even more shoppers and visitors, while also becoming a focal point for our community."

"We will also have a free stall each month for new and local businesses to try their hand at trading, which is a great way to encourage the success of the market and of business growth."

Mr Stone, who lobbied

ENTHUSIASTIC: Cllr Alaric Pugh

to bring back the market, believes the market is important for the future of the town, which relies on small shops.

Speaking before the public consultation, he said: "If we lose these little shops it affects everyone. I put a post on Facebook and instantly got loads of feedback and loads of support from people in Clare and other villages like Hundon."

Clare, in Suffolk, was a popular market town until the regular market ceased in 1999. The last official market day was held in 2001.

Visitors on August 19 will find everything they need from organic fruit and vegetables to fresh bread, coffee, meat and fresh cut flowers.

Cllr Paul Bishop, chairman of Clare Town Council which is supporting the market's return, said: "Our parish survey showed that people were passionate about reinstating Clare market.

"Now it has returned we all need to make sure that we support it, so that it can go on to become a busy and successful market that brings people into Clare, provides for the community and supports our local economy."

To celebrate the first market, there will also be children's entertainment and live music while shoppers will also receive free Love Your Local Market reusable bags (while stocks last).

The market will take place from 8.30am to 3.30pm on the third Saturday of each month.

Anyone interested in trading can contact Sharon Fairweather, market development officer on (01284) 757093 or email sharon.fairweather@westsuffolk.gov.uk

Burnt waste tested in hunt for missing airman Corrie

ANNA SAVVA
@AnnaSavvaCN

SUFFOLK police have confirmed they have recovered material from a landfill incinerator site to check if it is connected to missing serviceman Corrie McKeague.

It will be taken for forensic tests to confirm if it is significant in the search for the 23-year-old who was last seen entering a refuse area in Bury St Edmunds last September.

Officers had spent 20 weeks searching a Milton landfill site in the hope of finding his remains.

On Tuesday, a Suffolk Constabulary spokesman said: "Police searching incinerated waste at the Great Blakenham energy-from-waste facility have recovered some material that requires further examination in order to establish whether it is in any way connected to the Corrie McKeague missing person inquiry.

"At this stage it cannot be confirmed whether or not this material is in any way linked to Corrie and so it will be subject to specialist examination and forensic analysis in the coming weeks.

"Police expected that it would be necessary to take items recovered from the search away from the site in order to examine them more carefully. Corrie's family have been kept updated about the search.

"The search of the incinerated waste is now complete."

This latest announcement comes after the Milton site search was halted last month while an independent review of the evidence is carried out by an external police force.

Corrie's father Martin McKeague said: "We've been kept up to date by the Suffolk police at every stage, including the recent search of the incinerator.

"The McKeague family in Scotland fully supports the Suffolk and Norfolk police forces and the way in which they continue to conduct the investigation into my son's disappearance. We remain focused on the facts, and those facts suggest we are looking in the right places."

Mum slams firm selling merchandise

CORRIE McKeague's mother has hit out at an American company selling merchandise bearing her son's image.

Nicola Urquhart responded to her Facebook followers' concerns after they alerted the family to the online scam.

She wrote: "Just a quick update as I am receiving a lot of messages about an American company trying to sell merchandise with Corrie's photo and #findcorrie.

"I would just like to clarify that this company has taken my photo of Corrie without my permission and are keeping any profits they make.

"This company has nothing to do with me or my family. I have been provided with the name of the woman apparently behind it and will be passing this on to the police."

Meanwhile, the firm told concerned members of the public it was going to donate profits from any sales to the campaign to find Corrie.

The online shop, called The Perfect Gift, later took down the merchandise, including wrist bands and T-shirts, similar to the items previously endorsed by Nicola, after being in contact with the family.

Nicola continued: "Please do not buy items from them believing you are helping the wonderful charities we support as this is most certainly not the case.

"I have now been informed by the person that set this up that it will now be removed. It appears that someone else was pretending they had my permission.

"But thanks to the lovely people on here (Facebook) helping me with information we have hopefully now stopped this and can move on."

Corrie was last seen on September 24 last year after a night out in Bury St Edmunds.

Sanctuary saved thanks to the News

RACHAEL MCMENEMY
@rach_mc9CN

AN animal sanctuary that was facing financial ruin has thanked the News and its readers for helping to bring it back from the brink.

Carol Harris, who has been running Jaybeth animal sanctuary near Haverhill for 40 years, was in desperate need of extra help and was struggling to pay vet and food bills.

After hearing of the plight of Buddy the bull terrier who needed urgent vet treatment, animal lover Sheena Hester set up a JustGiving page.

In just four days the petition raised more than £1,000 which Carol used to pay outstanding and new vet bills and to buy food for her menagerie of animals.

Carol said: "I really just want to thank the News for publicising everything, the JustGiving page has raised an outstanding amount of money.

"I've spent money on animal food and the rest went to the vet."

Thanks to all the donations, Buddy has been given the treatment he couldn't live without.

Buddy needed investigative X-rays and a biopsy for a lump on his sternum but the sanctuary were worried about covering the cost of his treatment.

Carol said: "He had his operation and he's now been declared healthy and he's ready to go to a new home. There's already been interest in him."

The sanctuary rehomes animals of every type. Carol currently has about 20 dogs, 30 cats, some geese, lambs, ponies and an owl and she admits to often thinking the worst in people after seeing the cruelty they can inflict.

She said: "I've been open for 40 years in November and now I've got people wanting to volunteer to walk dogs and help, remembering we are here and bringing food.

"Thank you to the Haverhill News for that, you've put us back on the map. It's put my faith back in the human race.

"I usually only see people when they've lost an animal or people who have been cruel to animals and it makes you think the world is going downhill and this has made me see people can be great."

Walk supports cancer cause

EVERY year, 41,200 people in the UK are diagnosed with bowel cancer, including my mum.

Luckily it was spotted early when survival rates are higher and she has now recovered from the disease.

Physical activity plays an important part in stacking the odds against a bowel cancer diagnosis.

As a keen walker myself, I'm delighted to support Bowel Cancer UK's Walk Together – a five-mile sponsored walk that they can organise themselves or join the national walk in London.

Walk Together is a sponsored walk to bring people together so that they can show their support for those undergoing treatment, remember loved ones we have lost and raise funds to help stop bowel cancer.

It's for people of all ages and abilities.

Sign up to Walk Together in London on Saturday, September 23, 2017 or to receive a fundraising pack with everything you need to hold your own memorable walk.

A sense of humour helps

THE latest letters from Cllr Deborah Roberts, Eve Stafford, R Livermore and Alan Shepherd illustrate to me at least that the once-great Tory Party is in an unbelievable mess.

Cllr Roberts suggests that Mr Shepherd is possibly one of the last true Tories, commends the Honourable Jacob Rees-Mogg, the MP for North East Somerset and the whole of the 18th century, as "pukka posh" and describes the Mogg as encapsulating "all that there is about being British".

Cllr Roberts also writes regarding "so many Tories" turning to Nigel Farage.

Look where that got them, the Tories, that is. Eve Stafford, rightly in my view, condemns Mr Farage.

Watch out for his Tory defenders, Eve. They are numerous and they'll get back at you for doing down their hero.

R Livermore commends Margaret Thatcher, condemns subsequent Tory leaders Cameron and May and says "Mr Farage, the floor is yours in 2019".

I guess that R Livermore will be among the first to get back at Eve Stafford.

As for my friend Alan Shepherd, I'm beginning to think that your readers will soon look upon the letters coming from him and from me as illustrative of the grouchy old hecklers, Statler and Waldorf, of The Muppet Show.

This ex-Tory at least has a sense of humour, which is increasingly rare amongst the divided and distraught Tories themselves.

Cut the guided busway costs

SO we are facing another protracted legal battle with BAM Nuttall over faults with the guided busway amounting to £36.5 million.

According to Smarter Cambridge Transport the majority of the faults are caused by the design, and not by construction defects.

If this is the case I cannot see BAM Nuttall agreeing to pay for any repairs, irrespective of whether the county council sues or not.

This will put the total cost of the busway over £200 million against an original cost of £73 million.

Is it not about time the county council admitted they have got it wrong and cut their significant losses, by cancelling the busway before the taxpayer ends up facing any more large repair bills in the future?

There must be something major wrong with the design if so many faults costing so much money have arisen in six years on a project that is supposed to have a life span of 40 years.

Maybe the Cast-Iron campaign has been proven right when they campaigned for a railway back in 2003.

Leasehold action needed

SAJID Javid is to be congratulated on his intent to tackle exorbitant ground rents on new-build homes.

However, established leasehold homes are also subject to extortionate fees, especially in relation to renewing the term of leasehold.

There needs to be urgent action to curtail the huge sums demanded as remaining leaseholds shorten.

In the hurry to find a home, home-buyers typically do not understand the consequences of the small print.

There needs to be action taken to redress the occurrence of writing into the contract, provisors which put upon leaseholders, responsibilities which are the landlord's.

‘NHS staff bullied me’, says Suffolk ambulance volunteer

OLIVIA BELL
@CambridgeNewsUK

A FORMER Community First Responder (CFR) has accused the East of England Ambulance Service of ‘failing’ its volunteers.

The Suffolk man, who used to volunteer in a Cambridgeshire village, has accused the NHS of ‘taking advantage’ of responders, who he describes as ‘used’ and ‘bullied’.

The 23-year old, who does not want to be named, used to volunteer frequently for up to 48 hours a week. He labelled the lack of psychological support offered to CFRs as a ‘disgrace’.

He opened up about his experiences to the News, saying: “I feel my story needs to be published locally for anything to change.”

A CFR is a volunteer who is trained by the ambulance trust to give first aid to a critically ill patient until an ambulance crew arrives to take over treatment. They can use a defibrillator and are typically placed in rural areas where it may take longer for paramedics to reach a scene.

CFRs are sent to category one incidents, which currently make up around half of all emergency calls to the ambulance service and require a response within eight minutes.

Allegations made recently in the Ipswich Star accuse the NHS of using CFRs as ‘clock stoppers’, but our whistle-blower says this is only half the problem.

“It’s really important that there are people to give emergency first aid on scene as soon as possible, and first responders ‘stop the clock’ for NHS and ambulance deadlines on response times, meaning many people actually wait far longer for specialist help, which can be an issue,” he said.

“This means as community first responders we’re often the first to arrive at very distressing cases. I had a traumatic experience attending a cardiac arrest where we lost the patient. The NHS says it is there to support us, but after three phone calls to support services I still had no help.

“I know it’s low on funds but (CFR)s need support too. As long as you’re hitting targets for them, once you’ve done that you’re not wanted or cared about.”

In addition to lack of support from the NHS in general, he also accused paid East Anglia Ambulance Service staff members of ‘bullying’ volunteers.

“They don’t like that we do this for free and they look down their noses at us,” he said.

“I’ve had several experiences of being humiliated on the job, including in front of patients when I accidentally tangled a tube or made a small mistake. It’s very unprofessional.”

He claims his numerous complaints “fell on deaf ears”.

An East of England Ambulance Service NHS Trust (EEAST) spokesman said: “We refute any suggestion that community first responders are being used as clock stoppers. CFRs play an extremely important role in their communities by responding to life-threatening emergencies where they live or work and we are enormously grateful for the many hours they dedicate to patient care.

“Responding to life-threatening emergencies can be upsetting, which is why the trust introduced Trauma Risk Incident Management (TRiM) for staff and volunteers who have been affected by difficult incidents. We now have more than 150 trained TRiM practitioners, allowing us to better support staff and volunteers. A CFR will also receive a welfare call after attending a cardiac arrest and, if further support is needed, this can be provided.

“We take very seriously any allegations of harassment in the workplace and would investigate thoroughly.”

Another CFR from the same village, however, has resigned this week for similar reasons.

Our whistleblower, who has instead starting training for charity St John’s Ambulance, warned: “The NHS is a failing system. Instead of looking after volunteers they are throwing them out the window.”

IN MEMORY OF MY LOVING WIFE

Janice Amanda Bowers
12.2.1944 - 5.8.2014

I do not need a special day
To bring you to mind
The days I do not think of you
Are very hard to find,

Each day when I awake
I know that you are gone
And no one knows the heartache
As I try to carry on.

My heart still aches with sadness
And secret tears still flow
What it meant to lose you

In death we love you still.

GEMMA WHITING: The Linton Kitchen founder secured a £5,000 loan from The Start Up Loans Company in 2013

£20m lent to back region's start-ups

THE Start Up Loans Company (SULCo) has reached a significant landmark after lending a total of £20 million to help launch start-ups across the East of England.

Since its creation in 2012, the Government-backed scheme has provided more than 3,200 loans to recipients in the region and more than 48,000 in total across the UK.

The Department of Business, Energy and Industrial Strategy, formerly the Department of Business, Innovation and Skills, formed the company in 2012 to provide loans of up to £25,000 at a fixed interest rate of 6 per cent per annum – in addition to offering a free mentoring service to each business it supports.

In Cambridge specifically, more than half a million in low-interest funding has been provided by the scheme.

Gemma Whiting launched The Linton Kitchen, a Cambridgeshire café in 2013, after securing a loan of £5,000 from The Start Up Loans Company. Having worked in the hospitality industry in both the UK and Australia, Gemma had plenty of experience in the food industry. After graduating with a media & PR degree, and trying to enter the jobs market during the recession, she decided to stick to her roots and launch her own food business, The Linton Kitchen.

The funding from SULCo allowed Gemma to buy vital start-up equipment such as a professional coffee machine, a stockpile of baking ingredients and furniture to kit out the café. Four years on and The Linton Kitchen uses local, seasonal and organic fruit and veg to provide light lunches, coffee and tea, and makes a range of homemade cakes and treats. Gemma also now designs bespoke wedding cakes.

Gemma's venture has seen a 25 per cent year-on-year increase in annual turnover, and she is looking to work with more companies to provide lunchtime catering.

Joanna Hill, interim CEO at The Start Up Loans Company, said: "Future entrepreneurs are often put off by the difficulties of securing finance. We're looking forward to bridging that gap and making self-employment accessible for everyone."

Find the right words

Another day, another year,
But precious memories keep you near.

Looking back with tenderness along the path you trod;
I bless the years I spent with you, and leave the rest to God.

God saw that you were tired, he knew you needed rest,
His garden must be beautiful, He only takes the best.

FAMILY

Epic trek in loving memory of father

A LOVING son walked 500 miles over 37 days in his dad's shoes to honour his memory.

Liam Staples, 27, took on the Camino Frances religious pilgrimage across the French and Spanish border in memory of his beloved dad, Mark, whose life's ambition had been to complete the trail.

To complete the mammoth trek, Liam had to overcome many obstacles: he had to quit his job to have time for the trail, he developed a serious foot infection, was overcome with grief and nearly went broke more than once over the 37 days.

On day one of the trek Liam was faced with a massive hurdle.

After climbing half way up the Pyrenees mountains, Liam discovered that the hostel he was due to stay in was fully booked. Left with no alternative, he had to walk the mountains at night with no food, no water and no lights.

Liam, from Park Road, Haverhill, said: "I had to make a decision and I decided to walk the mountains. From there I had to walk all over the Pyrenees with no food, no water and no torch. I was walking blind."

"I had a walking stick, but there was a 350 ft drop at the other side. It was pitch black, I felt uncomfortable, I started hearing noises.

RACHAEL MCMENEMY

@rach_mc9CN

"All this within the first walk. I just kept thinking 'if it's all going to be like this what have I got myself in for?'"

Only days later, Liam was rushed to hospital in Pamplona with a serious foot infection that put the rest of his trip in jeopardy.

He said: "I started walking with a woman I met and she saw my feet getting worse day by day. She said you have to go to the doctors. I was being stubborn and told her not to worry, that it was just water retention. She just told me we were going to the hospital. I had a severe foot infection."

"I was told I would need to take seven days to rest and a massive dose of antibiotics, but after three days I just carried on walking. I just didn't want to stop."

Liam describes his dad, Mark, as his "best friend" and throughout the entire journey he kept memories of his dad close to hand.

The duo had planned to set out for their second attempt at the walk in August 2016, but Mark was diagnosed with terminal cancer a week before they were due to fly out.

The former landscape designer said: "We planned to do it first in 2014 and then five miles into day three he got a hernia and we had to fly home."

"So we decided to do it in 2016, he got himself all shipshape but then we got this devastating news."

Mark, 52, died just a week before Christmas, spurring Liam to finish the journey his dad would never get to take.

After 37 days Liam eventually completed the gruelling trek and he did every part of it walking in or carrying his dad's boots with him, making sure Mark completed the walk he'd always longed to do.

After completing the trail, people usually get a certificate issued by order of the Vatican as proof and a memory of their journey.

Liam was desperate to get his dad a certificate too and thanks to one persuasive phone call from a church official in Santiago, Liam was given special permission from the Vatican to have a certificate for Mark too.

"I just broke down," said Liam, who finished the walk in July. "Now I can say he's finished it. I ended up just sitting on the beach trying to say goodbye, trying to move on. I still can't, but as I sat there a dolphin came out the water and I know it was him, he was there telling me not to give up on myself."

"This has helped me a lot, I was quite isolated, it's given me freedom."

As a lasting memory, a friend took a loose stone from the Cathedral of Santiago de Compostela, and carved it into a heart with a prayer engraved on it.

Region's accident blackspots revealed

ALMOST 90 fatal crashes and more than 700 serious accidents have taken place on Cambridgeshire's roads in the last five years.

Official statistics from Cambridgeshire County Council also reveal there were more than 4,000 minor collisions on roads across the county between 2012 and 2016.

In total there were 89 deaths, 728 serious accidents and 4,042 slight incidents.

The A1307 between Cambridgeshire and Suffolk was named as one of the accident hotspots.

A spokesman for the Cambridgeshire and Peterborough Road Safety Partnership said the majority of collisions where people are killed or seriously injured in the county occur on rural A-roads "where the traffic volumes and impact speed tend to be higher".

The road safety spokesman added: "Every death and life-changing injury on Cambridgeshire's roads is one too many. Studies are being carried out at the moment to look at ways we can improve the safety of our highest risk A-roads and we monitor any new roads or changes to the road layout to ensure they are safe."

ANNA SAVVA
@AnnaSavvaCN

"Safety improvement funding is prioritised for 'blackspots' where a high number of collisions happen in one location. These accident cluster sites are reviewed on an annual basis and the criteria and locations can be found on our website."

Driver error is one of the key factors which contributes to the number of incidents, according to the council. Chief among this is "failing to look properly", which is attributed to 90 per cent of all collisions on the roads.

The authority says it is addressing this by running a series of education and awareness campaigns, including new e-learning programme Cambs Drive iQ, targeted at younger drivers to reduce their risk on the road.

The road safety spokesman told those who use the roads that they need to "do their bit too", asking people to "slow down, leave themselves a bit more time and space and take an extra moment to look for bikes at junctions".

The most dangerous roads in Cambridgeshire and Suffolk over the period from 2012 to 2016 were:

1) A14

The A14 between Huntingdon and Cambridge is the region's most dangerous road with 14 fatal, 65 serious and 480 slight incidents.

Last month it claimed three lives in five days.

2) A142

The A142 between Newmarket and Chatteris is second with 13 fatal, 34 serious and 113 slight incidents. Last month there were calls for a safety investigation after a horror pile-up at Mepal.

3) A47

The A47 linking Birmingham to Lowestoft has been the scene of 14 fatal, 41 serious and 480 slight incidents.

4) A10

The A10 between Cambridge and Ely has claimed seven lives and has been the scene of 51 serious incidents and 201 slight crashes. Recently it was reported that a family man had a near miss on the road when he was thrown off his motorbike and landed on his head.

5) A141

The A141 is a major road across the Cambridgeshire Fens. It also saw

OVERTURNED: A lorry that came off the A10 near Stretham seven fatalities over the same time period as well as 36 serious and 157 minor incidents. This includes the story of one person taken to hospital after crash at Warboys.

6) A1

The A1 stretch between Biggleswade and Peterborough has been the scene of six fatal crashes from 2012 to 2016. It has also been the scene of 41 serious collisions and 175 slight incidents. This includes a woman who died after a crash involving a pedestrian and a vehicle.

7) A1123

The A1123 saw four deaths and 25 serious incidents. In 2016 a man denied death by dangerous driving after causing a crash which killed teenager Karl Langley.

8) A1198

The A1198 between Royston and

Huntingdon also saw four deaths, and 25 serious incidents. It had slightly more minor incidents at 59.

Last October Clare Bakhtiar, 38, was killed in an A1198 crash alongside 9-year-old Laurence Carroll.

9) A15

The A15 runs north from Peterborough via Market Deeping, Bourne, Sleaford and Lincoln. It claimed three lives, and saw 36 serious and 313 minor incidents during 2012 to 2016.

10) A1307

The A1307 between Cambridgeshire and Suffolk was the scene of three fatal crashes, 286 serious and 41 slight. Crashes on this road bring major disruption to cross-county commuters.

There were 13 other fatal incidents across Cambridgeshire's other rural roads during the same five-year period.

MUSIC

Euromillions winner hosts rock festival

RACHAEL MCMENEMY

@rach_mc9CN

EUROMILLIONS winner Adrian Bayford is due to be a noisy neighbour this weekend as he hosts a rock music festival starting today – in his back garden.

Adrian Bayford and his ex-wife Gillian, from Haverhill, scooped a colossal £148 million in the EuroMillions in 2012 and the self-confessed music lover stepped in to save the festival this year.

Mr Bayford, who owns Black Barn Records in Cambridge, stepped in and offered his mansion, Horseheath Lodge, completely free of charge to organisers after the event's last venue pulled out.

More than 1,000 tickets have been sold for the four-day Cambridge Rock Festival which will be held in the grounds of Mr Bayford's £6 million Horseheath mansion this weekend.

Festival director Dave Roberts said: "This is a stunning location in 90 acres of rolling parkland.

"This will be our 13th full festival and we aim for it to be the start of a new chapter in the life of the Cambridge Rock Festival."

YOUR GARDEN

With David Domoney

Net result - take steps to keep out the pests if you decide to grow your own sweetcorn

It may not be top of your crops, but grow this delightful yellow veg yourself and eat it freshly picked for a powerful hit of flavour

WHETHER you're a veteran of grow-your-own, or you are just starting to get a patch going, there's one wonderful veggie that may not be at the top of your list as a garden crop - corn on the cob.

But many people in the grow-your-own community are starting to think again about the benefits of those sweet yellow kernels.

Quite simply, there is an incredible difference in both taste and nutrition between home-grown and super-market corn on the cob.

Freshly picked tastes so much better because the high sugar levels in sweetcorn begin turning to starch within hours, reducing the flavour.

So when it comes straight off the plant - and into the pan - it's a whole new eating experience.

Sweetcorn really is a wonderful, nutritious crop for your home garden that isn't too troublesome to grow.

Early or mid-season types are more likely to produce a crop in the Irish climate. Late varieties should manage to crop in milder parts of the country.

The earliest you can sow is mid-May, because young seedlings will not handle the frost.

It's not a fussy crop and any fertile garden soil will be adequate enough, but it really does love the sun.

Strong winds and gales will hurt young plants, so a sheltered position is important.

Time-wise, you've missed this year I'm afraid - but there's nothing to stop you preparing a bed this autumn for optimum growing next season.

Do it in the next couple of months and the soil and manure have the opportunity to rot down and be super nutritious for the seeds by spring.

First off, pull all the weeds and give the site a good going over with a fork or a spade. Add your manure or compost and rake that in.

You'll also want to rake in around 100g of general purpose fertiliser per square metre of bed.

When the time comes, sow seeds every 35cm in holes that are around 2.5cm wide. A seed "dibber" is really helpful here if you have one.

Replace the soil then water the whole area properly. Because sweetcorn is wind-pollinated, you need to plant it in blocks rather than rows.

That way, the male flowers at the top of the plant will shed pollen on the female tassels below - which is where the cobs will form and grow.

You can give the process a little helping hand by tapping the tops of the plants when the male flower opens.

Keep an eye on the seeds and give it water regularly, especially during any dry spells, but be sure not to make the ground sodden.

Sweetcorn is a hungry crop, so make sure you apply a general fertiliser regularly once the cobs start to appear.

Remove weeds carefully with a hoe - sweetcorn is a shallow-rooted plant so you're in danger of hurting the roots if you are too gung-ho.

As the plants grow you may want to stake them, especially if the planting area is exposed to wind or rain. Stake each one individually - or you can anchor the plant by adding more soil around the base and banking up.

You will have to keep a close eye out for pests. Mice especially love sweetcorn, as do birds and the usual suspects of slugs and snails.

Netting will keep the birds off, but you will need to think about using mouse traps if you find you have a particular problem with them. If you've planted early varieties of sweetcorn, you can expect to see the first cobs in July or August. Late-developing types won't yield until around October.

After a good summer, you can expect two cobs per plant, but it's very weather-dependent so don't be too disappointed if you only get one.

When the tassels turn brown, a cob is usually ripe enough to pick.

You can test the cobs for ripeness by squeezing a grain between your thumb and finger and seeing what liquid comes out.

If it's a watery, almost see-through liquid, then you are being too eager.

A creamy liquid means a perfectly ripe cob. But if it is pasty, you're probably too late.

To pick, twist from the stem and they should come off easily.

Once picked, cobs will lose their flavour rapidly, so get them straight in the pan for a sweet and delicious treat.

EIGHT WAYS TO BE WATER WISE DURING THE WARMER MONTHS

THERE'S been no sign yet this summer of a hosepipe ban, but we should all be thinking about ways to use less water - particularly the greenfingers among us, who have gardens to look after.

Here's how you can cut down on the amount of fresh water you use this summer...

1 AVOID SPRINKLERS

A sprinkler can use up to 1,000 litres of drinking water, or 220 gallons, in an hour. There are so many products on the market now to help us save water that there's really no excuse not to, from controlled irrigation systems where sensors monitor the moisture in the soil and only water your plants when the soil really needs it, to bath water diverters which send all your

JOBS FOR THE WEEK

by Hannah Stephenson

'grey' water to your water butt.

2 WATER AT CERTAIN TIMES OF THE DAY

Water at specific times - early morning or dusk - to reduce evaporation. Don't water in the heat of the day. Use water butts; put pots under hanging baskets so the overspill also waters plants below and leave clippings on the lawn after mowing to retain moisture.

3 DON'T WATER ALREADY ESTABLISHED LAWNS

If we have a long, hot spell, your lawn may turn a bit brown, but it will recover with the autumn

Avoid using a sprinkler as it can use up to 1,000 litres of water in an hour rains. Leave grass to grow a bit longer to preserve water and introduce drought-tolerant clovers, which will prevent the lawn from changing colour completely when a dry spell hits.

4 BUY THE RIGHT PLANT FOR YOU

Some plants need more water than others, so make sure you've got the right plants for your garden. Avoid tropical flowers and aim to buy plants from your local area.

5 RECYCLE YOUR WATER

Try to recycle water as a matter of course. Use a plastic bowl for washing up and then deposit the water on to your plants, as a small amount of washing up liquid isn't going to hurt them.

6 USE THE RAIN TO WATER YOUR PLANTS

Up to 85,000 litres of rain falls on your roof each year, so install a water butt and use it to water your plants and wash your car.

7 CHOOSE YOUR PLANT PLACEMENT WISELY

Some more thirsty specimens in pots may benefit from being placed on a tray lined with capillary matting, which soaks up the water and then delivers the moisture to the roots, gradually when it's needed.

8 MULCH!

Add a thick layer of mulch around your plants. That could be anything that will cover the soil sufficiently to prevent it from getting too hot. Leaves and bark work very well and they gradually break down towards winter. Other things could be pebbles, needles, straw, fruit pips or even newspaper.

There is a big difference in both taste and nutrition between home-grown and supermarket corn on the cob

Cutting down the height of leylandii shouldn't kill it off

Q MY neighbour wants me to lop three meters off the top of my leylandii trees. Will that damage the trees?

- Martin

A LEYLANDII are fast growers, and easily get too large for the average garden.

Topping them is unlikely to kill the trees, but you could get some dieback from the cuts. New branches should develop and grow upwards.

Best do it now, July-August, because winter pruning increases the risk of dieback. Do not cut more than 30 per cent of the entire tree in any one year to be sure it recovers.

Q HOW deep should I plant a rose bush?

- Jackson

A PLANT it at the same soil level it is in the pot it came in then water in well.

ROBIN JAROSSI INVESTIGATES THE 1960s 'RIPPER' WHO DUMPED MURDERED PROSTITUTES NAKED... AND WAS NEVER CAUGHT

SWINGING London woke up on April 24, 1964, to the news that a depraved serial killer was stalking its streets.

The body of Helen Barthelemy, 22, had been found naked in an alley. She was the second victim discovered that month and the third since February.

Like the other victims, Helen worked the streets of West London. Along with Hannah Tailford and Irene Lockwood, she was petite and vulnerable.

The killer's grim trademark was the removal of his victims' clothing and belongings – even false teeth – earning him the nickname Jack the Stripper.

Det Chief Supt John du Rose, led the inquiry. Known as Four-Day Johnny for his speed in solving cases, Mr du Rose said: "There are hundreds of police involved, more than any inquiry ever before. We'll get him. You can be sure of that."

Yet they never did. How did the murderer evade the massive investigation?

Reviewing rarely seen case files, old coroners' reports and photographs exposes a shocking insight into the underbelly of 1960s London.

The 'Nude Murders' as they became known revealed a brutal sex trade flourishing on many West London streets.

THE INVESTIGATION

MR DU ROSE, one of Scotland Yard's top five investigators, took charge of the Nude Murders case in February 1965. He had a 200-strong CID force, plus another 100 officers. The Special Patrol Group of 300 officers was also called in.

Observation points were set up around West London to monitor cars seen repeatedly at night. Officers did intelligence-gathering in pubs and clubs. Policewomen disguised as prostitutes noted car registration plates and suspicious behaviour.

A break-through came when dust and paint particles on the last four women revealed they'd been stored at an abandoned factory on Heron Trading Estate, where Bridget 'Bridie' O'Hara was found. Police began interviewing 7,000 employees.

THE SUSPECTS

DETECTIVES probed suspects including a dental surgeon, a mortuary assistant and the victims' partners.

No evidence was found. But one suspect did raise major suspicions, a disgraced former detective.

Det Chief Supt John du Rose usually got his man – but not this time

Detectives searching the area where one of the victims was found, and right, the new book about the murders

Could their killer have been a cop?

No one has ever been brought to justice over the 1960s murders of (L-R) Elizabeth Figg, Helen Barthelemy, Gwyneth Rees, Hannah Tailford, Mary Flemming, Bridget 'Bridie' O'Hara, Irene Lockwood and Frances Brown

THE VICTIMS were prostitutes, around 5ft 1in. The first two women were found in the Thames; the next four all had dust and paint particles on their bodies, revealing they had been undressed and stored before being dumped in public places.

Four had also been asphyxiated. None showed signs of sexual violence, but detectives speculated they had been killed during a sex act. Hannah, 30, was found on February 2, 1964, on the Thames foreshore by the Corinthian Sailing Club, Hammersmith. She had left her young daughter with her partner at their flat, on the night she was last seen, January 24.

THE VICTIMS

Pregnant Irene, 25, was found on April 8 by Corney Reach steps in Chiswick. She was last seen in The Windmill pub, Chiswick High Road, the night before her death. Helen was dumped in Brentford on April 24. The last positive sighting was at her bedsit in Willesden three days earlier. Her body gave up the first major clue: dust and paint particles.

Victim Mary Fleming, 30, had been soliciting on Queensway on July 11. Three days later, her body was found in a street in Chiswick. Next was Frances Brown, 21. She and fellow prostitute Beryl Mahood had been picked up by two motorists near Portobello Road.

Frances was found on November 25, in a Kensington car park. Beryl gave police descriptions of the motorists.

Bridget 'Bridie' O'Hara, 27, meanwhile, had been drinking in Shepherd's Bush Hotel before leaving with an unidentified man. She was found on February 16, 1965, on a trading estate in Acton.

Two other prostitutes who may have been victims of the killer were Elizabeth Figg, 21, found on June 17, 1959, and Gwyneth Rees, 22, found on November 8, 1963.

THE KILLER

THE killer stopped his spree after Bridie's murder. The probe was rapidly wound down. It had failed because Scotland Yard's top officers had little expertise in catching serial killers.

Modern investigations would use new profiling techniques. Expert geographic analysis in my book reveals the killer probably lived in a small area stretching west from central Hammersmith or Holland Park. Today's detectives use such tools to narrow their search.

It is sobering to think the killer could be alive today, perhaps in his late 70s. His crimes are largely forgotten, no doubt due to a lack of sympathy for the victims, seen as being outside of decent society.

Who was he? Probably a policeman, though not the disgraced detective, who could not even carry out a burglary without being spotted.

Yet the possibility remains that the killer was a more devious officer, involved in the probe.

If so, he had a fantastic advantage in keeping ahead of Mr Du Rose's team.

He would know the night observation points, the alleys and abandoned factories.

He could even have stalked victims while on duty. He would know when to stop if the manhunt was closing in.

He evaded Scotland Yard's searchlight, yet he was probably in plain sight all along.

He was most likely one of them.

TIN MAN by Sarah Winman, Tinder Press, £12.99 (ebook £6.49)

ACTRESS and writer Sarah Winman's third novel Tin Man is a heart-breaking story about love, loss and grief.

Ellis and Michael are best friends, growing up without mothers in Oxford in the 1970s. They share a love of cycling and travel, and, on a trip to France, their relationship becomes physical. A few years later, Annie enters the picture, with the trio soon becoming inseparable. But then Michael moves to London and disappears from Ellis and Annie's lives.

Years pass, and in 1996 the reader encounters a withdrawn Ellis living on his own and working nights at a car factory. The devastating events of the intervening years slowly come to light as Winman skilfully moves between characters and decades.

This book is all emotion, and unashamedly so, exploring themes such as the exuberance of youth and the desperation of unrequited love – and what lingers at the end is an overwhelming sense of sadness.

Tin Man may be a short novel, at just 195 pages, but it packs an enormous punch.

THEN SHE WAS GONE by Lisa Jewell, Century, £12.99 (ebook £7.99)

ELLIE MACK, 15, disappears without a trace. Ten years later, a body is found and her mother, Laurel, has a chance to rebuild her on-hold life. She meets a charismatic stranger in a cafe and is swept into an affair. But is Floyd all he seems – and why is his daughter, almost a carbon copy of Ellie?

Jewell builds a gripping novel around a maze of dark secrets, a tautly wound psychological thriller in which the suspense builds slowly. Her storytelling is immaculate, hopping between past and present, and in and out of different characters. It's a tough read at times, but Jewell always keeps everything moving.

The intrigue never flags as she pushes towards a redemptive resolution.

An astute and emotionally charged read, riddled with creepiness. Fully recommended.

Jaguar boosts XJ range with new flagship, the XJR575

JAGUAR'S big-selling XJ luxury sports saloon has been given a boost in power, technical improvements and further safety kit plus a new flagship model, the XJR575.

The XJR575 is the most powerful in the line-up and it delivers 575bhp from Jaguar Land Rover's 5.0-litre V8 supercharged engine which now powers the big saloon from 0-60mph in just 4.2 seconds and to a top speed of 186mph.

Available in standard wheelbase body style, the XJR575 reinforces the XJR's standing as Jaguar's fastest XJ saloon and customers will be able to choose between two exterior colour finishes created at Special Vehicle Operations' state-of-the-art Oxford Road facility in Coventry: Velocity Blue and Satin Corris Grey.

Special exterior details on the XJR575 include a rear spoiler, side sills, front bumper and lower air intakes featuring gloss black surrounds and it comes with XJR575 exterior badging and twin bonnet louvres, 20-inch Farallon gloss-black wheels plus red painted brake callipers.

Fuel figures for the new high performance XJ are 25.5mpg with emissions of 264g/km.

Across the line-up, the new XJ features a number of technology upgrades which enhance connectivity with 4G Wi-Fi capability, allowing occupants to stay online on the move with as many as eight devices.

Ian Callum, Jaguar director of design, said: "The Jaguar XJ is the largest model in our saloon car line-up and retains the physical presence and graceful design customers expect from a Jaguar flagship. Anyone who sees this car immediately knows it is both great to drive and to sit in."

The new models are priced from £59,995 with the XJR575 costing from £93,710.

UPDATED: The Dacia Sandero

New choices for the Dacia Sandero, Logan

NEW engine choice and equipment updates have been announced by Dacia for the latest Sandero and Logan MCV estate ranges.

The 1.0-litre SSc 75 petrol engine is now offered with Laureate trim for both cars and the height adjustment pack becomes standard equipment for Ambiance trim.

The SSc 75 engine was previously available only on the Access and Ambiance trim levels.

Updated equipment with Laureate specification includes satellite navigation and rear parking sensors.

The 1.0-litre three-cylinder petrol engine produces the same power as the outgoing 1.2-litre 16V 75 but is up to 10 per cent more efficient.

The Sandero Laureate SSc 75 is priced from £8,595 and the new Logan MCV Laureate SSc 75 comes in from £9,895.

The new engine and trim combination will be available later in the year but can be ordered now.

i3 and Leaf named best used electric car buys

CONSUMER interest in electric vehicles is soaring. The market for alternatively fuelled vehicles (AFVs) saw a record market share of 4.4 per cent in June with more than 10,700 hitting the roads, a rise of 29.0 per cent.

More than 60,000 new AFVs have joined Britain's roads so far this year. The overall used market for electric vehicles has seen gains with values increasing by seven per cent this year.

Motoring expert Chris Plumb from hpi said: "Interestingly it appears to be the range extender models which is driving the recent strong performance as values of pure electric have struggled of late. The BMW i3 is a popular choice and is a great second hand buy. It brings a good level of specification and badge prestige.

BMW i3: Electric-era star car

"The optional range extender can increase the range of the BMW i3 in comfort Mode from up to 125 miles to a total of 206 miles. The small, rear-mounted, quiet two-cylinder petrol engine powers a generator that maintains the charge of the battery at a constant level, so that the BMW i3 can continue to drive electrical."

Model/Trim	Cost New	15/15 20K
BMW i3 5dr Auto (13-16)	£30,925	£14,650
BMW i3 Range Extender 5dr Auto (13-16)	£34,075	£18,400
Nissan Leaf Tekna 5dr Auto (15- )	£30,535	£9,900
Nissan Leaf Tekna 30KWh 5dr Auto (15- )	£31,435	£12,200

The Nissan Leaf with the 30KWh powertrain is attracting higher used values than the 24kWh as it has a larger range, with an NEDC range of up to 124 miles (LEAF 24kWh) or up to 155 miles (LEAF 30kWh).

Demand for petrol hybrid used vehicles remains high. Used values bucked market trends in June and prices strengthened overall, moving up by an average of 0.2 per cent at three years 60,000 miles. Certain derivatives performed particularly well such as the Toyota Prius (12-17) Plug-In which increased by 3.9 per cent, Lexus RX (12-16) Hybrid which saw values rise by 2 per cent as too did the Prius+ (12- ) Hybrid.

THE ULTIMATE: The Ford Sierra RS500 Cosworth

Ford Cosworth star celebrates its 30th

ONE of the most iconic performance cars of the 1980s is celebrating its 30th anniversary in style, having been named the "Ultimate Cosworth" by one of the UK's biggest one-make car shows.

The Ford Sierra RS500 Cosworth pipped its spiritual successor, the Escort RS Cosworth, to the post, securing over 55 per cent of the votes in an online survey carried out by Ford Fair.

A special display celebrating both of the fast Fords will be one of the main features of this year's show, at Silverstone, Northants, on Sunday, August 6.

Alfa Romeo puts a price on Stelvio – its first SUV

ALFA Romeo's first SUV, the Stelvio, will be priced from £33,990 when it goes on sale in September.

The line-up will include a limited run of range-topping Milano Edizione special models costing from £43,990 for a 2.2-litre 210bhp diesel and £45,390 for a high performance 280bhp 2.0-litre petrol model which is laying claim to being the quickest medium-sized SUV on the market with a 0 to 60 time of 5.7 seconds and a top speed of 143mph. Fuel economy is rated at 40mpg with emissions of 161g/km.

The diesel Stelvio is almost as quick at 6.6 seconds 0 to 60 and Alfa claims it can return 58.9mpg.

COMPACT: Range Rover's Evoque

Evoque is the top car for Premiership stars

THEY may earn an average salary of £2.4 million a year but the most popular car for a Premiership footballer is the Range Rover Evoque, a compact SUV which costs from around £30,000.

That's according to a new list compiled by premium vehicle finance provider JBR Capital, which has put together a top 10 of the most popular cars purchased on finance by Premiership players over the last two years.

While the relatively affordable Evoque finishes in first place, the top 10 shows that players don't hold back when it comes to filling their garages with dream machines, with the four top cars after the Evoque being the Lamborghini Aventador, the Mercedes-Benz Onyx G6 GLE Coupe, Bentley Continental GT and Ferrari F12 Berlinetta.

Experts' doubts on clean air plan

MOTORING experts have raised a series of concerns over the Government's freshly coined clean air strategy.

Jim Holder, editorial director of What Car? magazine, said it would be "a tall order" to increase the market share of electrified vehicles from 4 per cent of new car sales today to 100 per cent in just 23 years.

"The car industry has proved time and again that it can hit demanding targets, but at the moment electrified cars are both more expensive and less usable than traditionally-engined ones," he said.

"These are hurdles that must be overcome to win over car buyers."

Holder said concerns over the charging infrastructure, the response of drivers to electric cars and the loss of billions of pounds of fuel duty meant "the risk is that this announcement creates more problems than it solves".

The AA described the ambition to stop the sale of new petrol and diesel cars by 2040 as "a step in the right direction", but insisted there were "plenty of factors that need to be addressed".

Significant investment will be required to install charging points across the country, including fast-charge points so cars can be topped up within half an hour, according to the firm's roads policy spokesman Jack Cousens.

He predicted that the National Grid would be under pressure to "cope with a mass switch-on after the evening rush hour".

Cousens said affordability would play a key role in achieving the Government's ambitions and families on low incomes would need assistance and incentives to make the switch to electric cars.

He warned that although eight out of 10 drivers say they want clean air, many are sceptical whether a roll-out of Clean Air Zones in cities across the UK would be handled fairly, noting that car drivers are "not the only source of air pollution".

"Clean Air Zones should be the port of last resort rather than the position of first response," he added.

Steve Gooding, director of motoring research charity the RAC Foundation, said putting local authorities in charge of imposing restrictions on vehicles meant diesel owners "remain in the dark over where and when they will be able to use their cars and at what cost".

There is still "a lot to do" to get the take-up of ultra-low emission cars "on the right trajectory" as there are only 100,000 of them on the road out of a car fleet of more than 30 million, Gooding said.

He added that while a scrappage scheme "sounds good", the absence of a firm plan shows how difficult it is to create a "meaningful, cost-effective model".

IN CHARGE: At home

Electric era is 'exciting future'

THE rise of electric cars and homeowners generating, storing and selling their own electricity is a key concern for the energy supply and UK Power Networks, which supplies energy to London, the east and south east. It says that because the way we use energy is changing, distribution must too.

Basil Scarsella, CEO of UK Power Networks, said: "We are on the verge of a change as significant for electricity as the advent of broadband was for telecommunications."

"We are working with policy makers, regulators, academia, small and medium-sized enterprises and importantly customers to lay the foundations for an exciting future, which will place customers in control of energy usage."

UK Power Network's Future Smart consultation focuses largely on ensuring the electricity network can cope with increasing EV uptake by giving consumers the power to control when they charge their car, for example, to make the most of off-peak savings and reducing strain on the grid.

FA Cup will open teams' campaigns

HAVERHILL Rovers boss Ben Cowling said that his side is adapting to a new style of play ahead of their Thurlow Nunn League, Premier Division campaign.

Rovers had a mixed bag in their pre-season matches, with a 1-0 defeat against Mildenhall and a 4-1 loss to AFC Sudbury followed by wins over Lakenheath (5-1), Linton (2-1) and Braintree Town reserves (6-3).

As pre-season matches do not really mean a great deal in terms of results, Cowling was using the games for his side to practice a more free-flowing style of football.

Cowling said he was satisfied with the club's off-field dealings so far, with four players coming in, most recently Kelvin Enaro, a striker from Ely City.

Cowling's two other significant signings include Aaron Forshaw and Cameron Watson.

Rovers' first competitive match is an FA Cup, extra-preliminary round tie at Hoddesdon Town on Saturday.

Elsewhere, Haverhill Borough manager Anthony Choat is preparing his side for life in the Premier Division after achieving promotion last season.

It is also 29-year-old Choat's first season in charge, following the resignation at the end of last season of Martin Westcott, who he assisted for a majority of last season.

Borough are also in FA Cup action on Saturday, away to Enfield 1893.

Sims' bid to retain Spa title is dashed

MISSED OUT: Alexander Sims

ALEXANDER Sims endured bitter disappointment on his return to the Total Spa 24 Hours at the weekend.

The West Wratting driver took a memorable victory at the event last year but he had no luck on his side on this occasion.

Sharing the #99 Rowe Racing BMW M6 GT3 with Maxime Martin and Philipp Eng, Sims did not even finish the race.

The team started from 11th on the grid and soon established themselves in the top 10.

But it was not long after Sims took the wheel for the first time in the race when he was forced to pit to repair a broken wheel fastening. Valuable time was lost, and the team lost six laps to the front-runners as they dropped to 62nd place.

And although Sims, Martin and Eng fought hard to work their way back through the field to 12th place, another technical problem resulted in them retiring an hour and a half before the end.

"The problem we had unfortunately after the first pitstop with the wheel coming loose really told the whole story of the race," said Sims.

"Without that I really believe we could have been fighting at the front and theoretically for the win.

"Our pace in the night was really strong. The first couple of laps after the problem were a little bit difficult when you realise that you lost about 10 minutes and know the race is basically over.

"But then you get over the emotions and get in the car to do your job. And during the night it is always good fun."
